RENIPLUS Ceramic-Wood

The Lazy Susan is a wooden tray built right into the center of the table. It's typically a circular, rotating platform that makes it easy for everyone seated around the table to access shared dishes, sauces, or condiments—like salt, pepper, or olive oil—without needing to reach across. Being "built-in" means it's seamlessly integrated into the table itself, not just an add-on sitting on top. The wooden material gives it a warm, natural feel, adding a touch of character that contrasts nicely with the table's modern metal legs. This creates a balanced look that feels both contemporary and inviting.
